

Test Instructions

Please create the attached mockup using HTML, CSS, and JavaScript. You must use at least some of classes from the attached style sheet, fran.css. You may use outside libraries, such as Tailwind, Bootstrap, Next, React, etc., but it is recommended that you write as much vanilla code as possible so we can assess your base knowledge of the front-end languages.

Don't worry about the header and footer - what you are tasked to create is the hero banner (where you see the 'Say Cheese' title and it's background image) down to and including the four side-by-side images. Where you choose to make breaks for mobile and tablet is up to you.

Your work doesn't have to be strictly one to one - for example, if the pixels containing a cheese stick in the corner of an image gets cut off at a certain width, we would not penalize you for that. However, we still hope to see the general layout, the size of the fonts as close (and/or sensical) as possible, the images in the correct order, etc.

The Form

The mockup uses an already existing form in production on the Franciscan University website, but you may create your own. The only requirement is that there are First and Last Name fields, which upon being filled out open up to the rest of the form (which will be at least one other form field of your choosing, and a submit button. Don't worry about Recaptcha). See an example of this functionality at <https://franciscan.edu/inquire/>. This is intended to test your JavaScript knowledge.

Brand Guidelines

You won't need all of this, but it might be helpful. We won't be picky about fonts (we get ours from Google fonts, but if you choose similar fonts, that is also fine).
